the fact such monies deposited into the trust account will be commingled with monies belonging to our other clients.

- 4.2. You agree and acknowledge that we will transfer the funds from the trust account to the Brokers appointed from time to time (including any approved clearing house, recognised clearing house, member of a clearing facility or member of an organised market) to execute, clear or settle the trades and the trades will then be settled with the Broker's custodian. In the event of insolvency of such Brokers with whom your funds are held, you understand that you may not be able to fully recover your monies. In order to effect transactions which involve foreign currencies, you agree and acknowledge that we may transfer your funds to financial institutions of our choice to execute foreign exchange transactions.
- 4.3. You may deposit additional funds in the trust account at any time provided that such deposits are notified to us prior to deposit. We shall be entitled to reject any deposits, at our sole and absolute discretion, for any reason or no reason.
- 4.4. You may withdraw from the Account at any time. Payment of the proceeds from the Account will generally be made to a bank account in your name and be made within seven (7) Business Days from the date which we received your request to withdraw or after the receipt of the relevant documentation and/or information needed for withdrawals as completed to our satisfaction, whichever is the later, or such longer period as we may determine in our absolute discretion, and particularly but not limited to situations where the realisation of the Account or the transfer of funds may be severely restricted. Disclosure of key risks associated with the Transactions

1. RISK OF INVESTING VIA ONLINE PLATFORM

You may be subject to the following risks while using our Services on the Platform:

- 1.1. In view of the importance of smooth access to and operation of our Platform, should there be any (a) failure by us or third-party service provider to make improvement, upgrades or enhancement to our Platform in a timely manner, (b) any prolonged or material server interruption due to network failures or any adverse development specific to our Platform, (c) restriction or access due to reasons such as market volatility and peak demands, you may suffer loss.
- 1.2. Our Platform is susceptible to operational and information security risks through breaches in cyber security. Cyber security breaches include, without limitation, infection by computer viruses and gaining unauthorised access to our systems through “hacking” or other means for the purpose of misappropriating assets or sensitive information, corrupting data, or causing operations to be disrupted. Cyber security breaches may also occur in a manner that does not require gaining unauthorised access, such as denial-of-service attacks or situations where authorised individuals intentionally or unintentionally release confidential information stored on our systems. A cyber security breach may cause disruptions and impact our business operations, which could potentially result in financial losses, the inability to determine the net asset value of your investments, violation of applicable law, regulatory penalties and/or fines, compliance and other costs. Your investment and you could be negatively impacted as a result. In addition, because we work closely with third-party service providers (e.g. custodians (if any)), indirect cyber security breaches at such third-party service providers may subject your investment and/or our systems to the same risks associated with direct cyber security breaches. Further, indirect cyber security breaches at an issuer of securities in which you or your portfolio invests may similarly negatively impact you or your portfolio. While we have established risk management systems designed to reduce the risks associated with cyber security breaches, there can be no assurances that such measures will be successful.

2. RISKS OF INVESTING IN COLLECTIVE INVESTMENT SCHEMES

- 2.1. If you invest in collective investment schemes, you will be subject to the risks associated with such collective investment schemes. We do not have control of the investments of the collective investment schemes and there is no assurance that the investment objective and strategy of such collective investment schemes will be successfully achieved which may have a negative impact to the net asset value of your investment.
- 2.2. There may be additional costs involved when investing into these collective investment schemes. There is also no guarantee that the collective investment schemes will always have sufficient liquidity to meet your redemption requests as and when made.

3. RISK RELATING TO INVESTMENTS IN EXCHANGE TRADED FUNDS (“ETF”)

If you or your portfolio invest in ETFs and you may be subject to the following risks:

- 3.1. Passive investment risks - The ETF may be passively managed and the ETF’s manager will not have the discretion to adapt to market changes due to the inherent investment nature of the ETF. Falls in the ETF's index are expected to result in corresponding falls in the value of your investments.

- 3.2. Tracking error risks – The ETF may be subject to tracking error risk, which is the risk that its performance may not track that of the index exactly. This tracking error may result from the investment strategy used, and fees and expenses. There can be no assurance of exact or identical replication of such ETF at any time of the performance of the index.
- 3.3. Trading risks - The trading price on the SEHK of the units of the ETF is driven by market factors such as the demand and supply of the units. Therefore, the units of such ETF may trade at a substantial premium or discount to the ETF's net asset value.
- 3.4. Termination risk - The ETF may be terminated early under certain circumstances, for example, where the index is no longer available for benchmarking or if the size of the ETF falls below a pre-determined net asset value threshold. You may not be able to recover the investments and suffer a loss when the ETF is terminated.
- 3.5. General risks relating to synthetic ETFs - Derivative instruments are susceptible to price fluctuations and higher volatility, which may result in large bid and offer spreads with no active secondary market. The ETF may suffer losses potentially equal to the full value of the derivatives.

4. RISK OF COMPLEX PRODUCTS

- 4.1. Complex products may involve the use of derivatives. The risk of loss in complex products can be more than the original amount invested. You should therefore exercise caution in relation to complex products.

5. RISK OF SECURITIES TRADING

- 5.1. The prices of securities fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. The price of a security may move up or down, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities.

6. RISK OF TRADING FUTURES AND OPTIONS

- 6.1. The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, you may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before you trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of your own financial position and investment objectives. If you trade options you should inform yourself of exercise and expiration procedures and your rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

Additional risk disclosure for futures and options trading

- 6.2. This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

Futures

1. Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are "leveraged" or "geared". A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit: this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be liable for any resulting deficit.

2. Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. "stop-loss" orders, or "stop limit" orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

Options

1. Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs.

The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium plus transactions costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote.

Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavorably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is “covered” by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

Additional risks common to futures and options

1. Terms and conditions of contracts

You should ask the firm with which you deal about the terms and conditions of the specific options which you are trading and associated obligations (e.g. options expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

2. Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or “circuits breakers”) may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If you have sold options, this may increase the risk of loss.

Further, normal pricing relationships between and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge “fair value”.

3. Deposited cash and property

You should familiarize yourself with the protections given to money or other property you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

4. Commission and other charges

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

5. Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before you trade you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. You should ask the firm with which you deal for details about the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

6. Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

7. Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or participant firms. Such limits may vary: you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.

8. Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or is not executed at all.

9. Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you deal may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarise yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

7. RISK OF TRADING IN LEVERAGED FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTRACTS

7.1. The risk of loss in leveraged foreign exchange trading can be substantial. You may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily limit losses to the intended amounts. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

8. RISK OF TRADING GROWTH ENTERPRISE MARKET STOCKS

- 8.1. Growth Enterprise Market (GEM) stocks involve a high investment risk. In particular, companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. GEM stocks may be very volatile and illiquid. You should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. The greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suited to professional and other sophisticated investors. Current information on GEM stocks may only be found on the internet website operated by The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited. GEM Companies are usually not required to issue paid announcements in gazetted newspapers. You should seek independent professional advice if you are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of this risk disclosure statement or the nature and risks involved in trading of GEM stocks.

9. RISKS OF CLIENT ASSETS RECEIVED OR HELD OUTSIDE HONG KONG

- 9.1. Client assets received or held by the licensed or registered person outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap.571) and the rules made thereunder. Consequently, such client assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on client assets received or held in Hong Kong.

10. RISK OF CUSTODY ARRANGEMENTS

- 10.1. Custodians or sub-custodians may be appointed in local markets for purpose of safekeeping assets in those markets. Where you invest in markets where custodial and/or settlement systems are not fully developed, your assets in the Account may be exposed to custodial risk. In case of liquidation, bankruptcy or insolvency of a custodian or sub-custodian, we may take a longer time to recover assets in the Account. In extreme circumstances such as the retroactive application of legislation and fraud or improper registration of title, we may even be unable to recover all of the assets in the Account. The costs borne by you in investing and holding investments in such markets will be generally higher than in organised securities markets.
- 10.2. Cash deposits placed with the custodian(s) are no different in legal characteristics than any other bank deposit and are therefore exposed to increased risk in the event of bankruptcy with the account holder being a general creditor of the custodian(s).
- 10.3. You acknowledge and understand that your assets will be co-mingled with assets of our other customers in omnibus accounts and there is no segregation of assets as between you and our other customers, other than the maintenance of accounting records to record your interests versus those of our other customers in the omnibus account. If there is a shortfall in the omnibus account for any reason, your Authorised Investments may not be identifiable by separate records or certificates and you may potentially be exposed to the losses of other customers.
- 10.4. The risks of commingling are that there are limited ways to determine the intent of clients involved on the mutualisation of risks in view of the constant fluctuation of the aggregate balance in such account, and to account separately for each of our clients' respective interest (if any) due on their respective cash balances in the trust account as on an aggregate basis. In the event of insolvency of the trust account custodian, you understand that you may not be able to fully recover your monies.

11. RISK OF PROVIDING AN AUTHORITY TO HOLD MAIL OR TO DIRECT MAIL TO THIRD PARTIES

- 11.1. If you provide the licensed or registered person with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for you to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of your account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.

12. RISK OF MARGIN TRADING

- 12.1. The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. You may sustain losses in excess of your cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with the licensed or registered person. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders. You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover, you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and interest charged on your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

13. RISK OF TRADING NASDAQ-AMEX SECURITIES AT THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF HONG KONG LIMITED

- 13.1. The securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Program ("PP") are aimed at sophisticated investors. You should consult the licensed or registered person and become familiarised with the PP before trading in the PP securities. You should be aware that the PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or the Growth Enterprise Market of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

14. RISK OF TRADING IN OVERSEAS-LISTED INVESTMENT PRODUCTS

Differences in Regulatory Regimes

- 14.1. Overseas markets may be subject to different regulations, and may operate differently from approved exchanges in Hong Kong. For example, there may be different rules providing for the safekeeping of securities and monies held by custodian banks or depositories. This may affect the level of safeguards in place to ensure proper segregation and safekeeping of your investment products or monies held overseas. There is also the risk of your investment products or monies not being protected if the custodian has credit problems or fails. Overseas markets may also have different periods for clearing and settling transactions. These may affect the information available to you regarding transaction prices and the time you have to settle your trade on such overseas markets.
- 14.2. Overseas markets may be subject to rules which may offer different investor protection as compared to Hong Kong. Before you start to trade, you should be fully aware of the types of redress available to you in Hong Kong and other relevant jurisdictions, if any.
- 14.3. Overseas-listed investment products may not be subject to the same disclosure standards that apply to investment products listed for quotation or quoted on an approved exchange in Hong Kong. Where disclosure is made, differences in accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards may also affect the quality and comparability of information provided. It may also be more difficult to locate up-to-date information, and the information published may only be available in a foreign language.

Differences in legal systems

- 14.4. In some countries, legal concepts which are practiced in mature legal systems may not be in place or may have yet to be tested in courts. This would make it more difficult to predict with a degree of certainty the outcome of judicial proceedings or even the quantum of damages which may be awarded following a successful claim.
- 14.5. The SFC will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of the regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions will be effected.
- 14.6. The laws of some jurisdictions may prohibit or restrict the repatriation of funds from such jurisdictions including capital, divestment proceeds, profits, dividends and interest arising from investment in such countries. Therefore, there is no guarantee that the funds you have invested and the funds arising from your investment will be capable of being remitted.
- 14.7. Some jurisdictions may also restrict the amount or type of investment products that foreign investors may trade. This can affect the liquidity and prices of the overseas-listed investment products that you invest in.

Different costs involved

- 14.8. There may be tax implications of investing in an overseas-listed investment product. For example, sale proceeds or the receipt of any dividends and other income may be subject to tax levies, duties or charges in the foreign country, in Hong Kong, or in both countries.
- 14.9. Your investment return on foreign currency-denominated investment products will be affected by exchange rate fluctuations where there is a need to convert from the currency of denomination of the investment products to another currency, or may be affected by exchange controls.
- 14.10. You may have to pay additional costs such as fees and broker's commissions for transactions in overseas exchanges. In some jurisdictions, you may also have to pay a premium to trade certain listed investment products. Therefore, before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commissions, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

Counterparty and correspondent broker risks

- 14.11. Transactions on overseas exchanges or overseas markets are generally effected by your Hong Kong broker through the use of foreign brokers who have trading and/or clearing rights on those exchanges. All transactions that are executed upon your instructions with such counterparties and correspondent brokers are dependent on their respective due performance of their obligations. The insolvency or default of such counterparties and correspondent brokers may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent and/or may result in difficulties in recovering your monies and assets held overseas.

Political, Economic and Social Developments

- 14.12. Overseas markets are influenced by the political, economic and social developments in the foreign jurisdiction, which may be uncertain and may increase the risk of investing in overseas-listed investment products.

15. RISK OF CONCENTRATION

- 15.1. Based on your preference of any investment strategy or relevant information available to us, your portfolio may invest only in or we may provide advice to you only in a specific country/region/sector/asset class. This may result in the portfolio or your investment being adversely affected by or depend heavily on the performance of those securities. You should also be aware that such portfolio is likely to be more volatile than a broad-based portfolio, such as a global or regional equity or bond portfolio, as the portfolio may be more susceptible to fluctuations in value resulting from limited number of holdings or from adverse conditions in their respective country, region, sector, or asset class.

16. RISK RELATING TO THE DEPOSITARY RECEIPTS

- 16.1. Depositary receipts are negotiable financial instruments issued by banks to represent a foreign company's publicly traded shares. Investments in depositary receipts may be subject to counterparty risks in which a significant or even total loss might be suffered in the event of the liquidation of the depository or custodian bank.

17. EMERGING MARKET RISK

- 17.1. Emerging markets may involve increased risks and special considerations not typically associated with investment in more developed markets, such as liquidity risks, currency risks/control, political and economic uncertainties, legal and taxation risks, settlement risks, custody risk and the likelihood of a high degree of volatility.

18. FOREIGN CURRENCY MARKETS RISK

- 18.1. Your investment may be exposed to fluctuations in currency exchange rates where you invest directly or indirectly in securities denominated in currencies other than the currency of valuation of your portfolio. While the risk associated with such exposure may be offset through foreign exchange transactions, such hedging transactions may not necessarily succeed in protecting your interest against exchange rate risks that your investment is exposed to. Further, the markets in which foreign exchange transactions are effected may be highly volatile, highly specialised and highly technical. Significant changes, including changes in liquidity and prices, can occur in such markets within very short periods of time, often within minutes. Foreign exchange trading risks include, but are not limited to, exchange rate risk, interest rate risk and potential interference by foreign governments through regulation of local exchange markets, foreign investment, or particular transactions in foreign currency.

- 18.2. Where your investments are denominated in a foreign currency, they may be held with an entity which is licensed, registered or authorised to act as a custodian in the country or territory where the monies or assets in the trust account or client account are held and such omnibus account is maintained. In such cases, you understand that the laws and practices relating to custody accounts in the relevant jurisdiction may differ from the laws and practices in Hong Kong. Such differences mean that your investment may not enjoy the same level of protection as accorded to those that are held in Hong Kong. Depending on the jurisdiction, this may affect your ability to recover the investment deposited in the trust account or client account.

19. RISK OF THE LIMITATIONS OF HEDGING TECHNIQUES

- 19.1. We are permitted, but not obliged, to use hedging techniques such as using futures, options and/or forward contracts to attempt to offset market and currency risks.

There is no guarantee that hedging techniques will fully and effectively achieve their desired result. The success of hedging much depends on various factors including any unanticipated changes in currency, interest rates and market circumstances, and hedging may become inefficient or ineffective or may result in a poorer overall performance of the portfolio. The portfolio may not obtain a perfect correlation between hedging instruments and the portfolio holdings being hedged. Such imperfect correlation may prevent the intended hedge or expose the portfolio to risk of loss. Any expenses arising from such hedging transactions, which may be significant depending on prevailing market conditions, will be borne by the portfolio in relation to which they have been incurred. This may have adverse impact on your investments or portfolio.

11. Severability

In the event that any of these provisions are found to be or become unlawful, invalid or otherwise unenforceable, that provision is to be deemed severed from these Terms of Use and shall not affect the legality, validity and enforceability of the remaining provisions of these Terms of Use. These Terms of Use shall continue in force as if such unlawful, invalid or unenforceable provision was severed from these Terms of Use.

12. No Waiver

Any failure or delay by yourself or us in exercising or enforcing any right or remedy contained in these Terms of Use does not constitute a waiver by the party responsible for such delay or failure. It shall also not constitute a bar to the exercise or enforcement at any subsequent time or times.

13. Entire Agreement

The Terms of Use supersede any previous agreement between the parties in relation to the matters dealt with herein and represents the entire understanding between the parties in relation thereto.

14. Rights of Third Parties

15. Applicable Law and Jurisdiction

All questions pertaining to the construction and interpretation of these Terms of Use and relating to the performance of any of the obligations or duties set forth herein by either of the parties hereto shall be determined in accordance with the laws of Hong Kong.

Any dispute arising out of or in connection with the use of our Platform or the Services and these Terms of Use, including any question regarding its existence, validity or termination, shall be referred to and finally resolved by arbitration in Hong Kong and in the English language, in accordance with the UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules for the time being in force, which rules are deemed to be incorporated by reference in this clause. The arbitration tribunal will consist of one arbitrator to be appointed by the Chairman of the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre. The parties understand that any party's right to appeal or seek modification of rulings in an arbitration is severely limited. Any award rendered by the arbitrator(s) will be final and binding and judgment may be entered upon it in any court of competent jurisdiction in the country and state of the principal office of the parties at the time such award is rendered.

16. Order of Precedence

In the event of any inconsistency between the Agreement and these Terms of Use, the terms of the Agreement will prevail.

17. Changes to these Terms of Use

We may revise these Terms of Use at any time by amending this page. The revised Terms of Use shall apply from the time of publication of the same on our Platform. Disclosure of key risks associated with the Transactions

The following disclosures set out the non-exhaustive key risks associated with the Transaction:

1. RISK OF INVESTING VIA ONLINE PLATFORM

You may be subject to the following risks while using our Services on the Platform:

- 1.1 In view of the importance of smooth access to and operation of our Platform, should there be any (a) failure by us or third-party service provider to make improvement, upgrades or enhancement to our Platform in a timely manner, (b) any prolonged or material server interruption due to network failures or any adverse development specific to our Platform, (c) restriction or access due to reasons such as market volatility and peak demands, you may suffer loss.
- 1.2 Our Platform is susceptible to operational and information security risks through breaches in cyber security. Cyber security breaches include, without limitation, infection by computer viruses and gaining unauthorised access to our systems through “hacking” or other means for the purpose of misappropriating assets or sensitive information, corrupting data, or causing operations to be disrupted. Cyber security breaches may also occur in a manner that does not require gaining unauthorised access, such as denial-of-service attacks or situations where authorised individuals intentionally or unintentionally release confidential information stored on our systems. A cyber security breach may cause disruptions and impact our business operations, which could potentially result in financial losses, the inability to determine the net asset value of your investments, violation of applicable law, regulatory penalties and/or fines, compliance and other costs. Your investment and you could be negatively impacted as a result. In addition, because we work closely with third-party service providers (e.g. custodians (if any)), indirect cyber security breaches at such third-party service providers may subject your investment and/or our systems to the same risks associated with direct cyber security breaches. Further, indirect cyber security breaches at an issuer of securities in which you or your portfolio invests may similarly negatively impact you or your portfolio. While we have established risk management systems designed to reduce the risks associated with cyber security breaches, there can be no assurances that such measures will be successful.

2. RISKS OF INVESTING IN COLLECTIVE INVESTMENT SCHEMES

- 2.1 If you invest in collective investment schemes, you will be subject to the risks associated with such collective investment schemes. We do not have control of the investments of the collective investment schemes and there is no assurance that the investment objective and strategy of such collective investment schemes will be successfully achieved which may have a negative impact to the net asset value of your investment.
- 2.2 There may be additional costs involved when investing into these collective investment schemes. There is also no guarantee that the collective investment schemes will always have sufficient liquidity to meet your redemption requests as and when made.

3. RISK RELATING TO INVESTMENTS IN EXCHANGE TRADED FUNDS (“ETF”)

If you or your portfolio invest in ETFs and you may be subject to the following risks:

- 3.1 Passive investment risks - The ETF may be passively managed and the ETF’s manager will not have the discretion to adapt to market changes due to the inherent investment nature of the ETF. Falls in the ETF's index are expected to result in corresponding falls in the value of your investments.

- 3.2 Tracking error risks – The ETF may be subject to tracking error risk, which is the risk that its performance may not track that of the index exactly. This tracking error may result from the investment strategy used, and fees and expenses. There can be no assurance of exact or identical replication of such ETF at any time of the performance of the index.
- 3.3 Trading risks - The trading price on the SEHK of the units of the ETF is driven by market factors such as the demand and supply of the units. Therefore, the units of such ETF may trade at a substantial premium or discount to the ETF's net asset value.
- 3.4 Termination risk - The ETF may be terminated early under certain circumstances, for example, where the index is no longer available for benchmarking or if the size of the ETF falls below a pre-determined net asset value threshold. You may not be able to recover the investments and suffer a loss when the ETF is terminated.
- 3.5 General risks relating to synthetic ETFs - Derivative instruments are susceptible to price fluctuations and higher volatility, which may result in large bid and offer spreads with no active secondary market. The ETF may suffer losses potentially equal to the full value of the derivatives.

4. RISK OF COMPLEX PRODUCTS

- 4.1 Complex products may involve the use of derivatives. The risk of loss in complex products can be more than the original amount invested. You should therefore exercise caution in relation to complex products.

5. RISK OF SECURITIES TRADING

- 5.1 The prices of securities fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. The price of a security may move up or down, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities.

6. RISK OF TRADING FUTURES AND OPTIONS

- 6.1 The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, you may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before you trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of your own financial position and investment objectives. If you trade options you should inform yourself of exercise and expiration procedures and your rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

Additional risk disclosure for futures and options trading

This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

Futures

1. Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are "leveraged" or "geared". A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit: this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be liable for any resulting deficit.

2. Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. "stop-loss" orders, or "stop limit" orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

1. Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs.

The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium plus transactions costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote.

Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavorably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

1. Terms and conditions of contracts

You should ask the firm with which you deal about the terms and conditions of the specific options which you are trading and associated obligations (e.g. options expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

2. Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or “circuits breakers”) may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If you have sold options, this may increase the risk of loss.

Further, normal pricing relationships between and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge “fair value”.

3. Deposited cash and property

You should familiarize yourself with the protections given to money or other property you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

4. Commission and other charges

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

5. Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before you trade you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. You should ask the firm with which you deal for details about the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

6. Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

7. Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or participant firms. Such limits may vary: you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.

8. Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or is not executed at all.

9. Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you deal may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarise yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

7. RISK OF TRADING IN LEVERAGED FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTRACTS

7.1 The risk of loss in leveraged foreign exchange trading can be substantial. You may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily limit losses to the intended amounts. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

8. RISK OF TRADING GROWTH ENTERPRISE MARKET STOCKS

- 8.1 Growth Enterprise Market (GEM) stocks involve a high investment risk. In particular, companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. GEM stocks may be very volatile and illiquid. You should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. The greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suited to professional and other sophisticated investors. Current information on GEM stocks may only be found on the internet website operated by The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited. GEM Companies are usually not required to issue paid announcements in gazetted newspapers. You should seek independent professional advice if you are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of this risk disclosure statement or the nature and risks involved in trading of GEM stocks.

9. RISKS OF CLIENT ASSETS RECEIVED OR HELD OUTSIDE HONG KONG

- 9.1 Client assets received or held by the licensed or registered person outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap.571) and the rules made thereunder. Consequently, such client assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on client assets received or held in Hong Kong.

10. RISK OF CUSTODY ARRANGEMENTS

- 10.1 Custodians or sub-custodians may be appointed in local markets for purpose of safekeeping assets in those markets. Where you invest in markets where custodial and/or settlement systems are not fully developed, your assets in the Account may be exposed to custodial risk. In case of liquidation, bankruptcy or insolvency of a custodian or sub-custodian, we may take a longer time to recover assets in the Account. In extreme circumstances such as the retroactive application of legislation and fraud or improper registration of title, we may even be unable to recover all of the assets in the Account. The costs borne by you in investing and holding investments in such markets will be generally higher than in organised securities markets.
- 10.2 Cash deposits placed with the custodian(s) are no different in legal characteristics than any other bank deposit and are therefore exposed to increased risk in the event of bankruptcy with the account holder being a general creditor of the custodian(s).
- 10.3 You acknowledge and understand that your assets will be co-mingled with assets of our other customers in omnibus accounts and there is no segregation of assets as between you and our other customers, other than the maintenance of accounting records to record your interests versus those of our other customers in the omnibus account. If there is a shortfall in the omnibus account for any reason, your Authorised Investments may not be identifiable by separate records or certificates and you may potentially be exposed to the losses of other customers.
- 10.4 The risks of commingling are that there are limited ways to determine the intent of clients involved on the mutualisation of risks in view of the constant fluctuation of the aggregate balance in such account, and to account separately for each of our clients' respective interest (if any) due on their respective cash balances in the trust account as on an aggregate basis. In the event of insolvency of the trust account custodian, you understand that you may not be able to fully recover your monies.

11. RISK OF PROVIDING AN AUTHORITY TO HOLD MAIL OR TO DIRECT MAIL TO THIRD PARTIES

- 11.1 If you provide the licensed or registered person with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for you to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of your account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.

- 12.1 The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. You may sustain losses in excess of your cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with the licensed or registered person. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders. You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover, you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and interest charged on your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

13. RISK OF TRADING NASDAQ-AMEX SECURITIES AT THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF HONG KONG LIMITED

- 13.1 The securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Program ("PP") are aimed at sophisticated investors. You should consult the licensed or registered person and become familiarised with the PP before trading in the PP securities. You should be aware that the PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or the Growth Enterprise Market of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

14. RISK OF TRADING IN OVERSEAS-LISTED INVESTMENT PRODUCTS

- 14.1 Overseas markets may be subject to different regulations, and may operate differently from approved exchanges in Hong Kong. For example, there may be different rules providing for the safekeeping of securities and monies held by custodian banks or depositories. This may affect the level of safeguards in place to ensure proper segregation and safekeeping of your investment products or monies held overseas. There is also the risk of your investment products or monies not being protected if the custodian has credit problems or fails. Overseas markets may also have different periods for clearing and settling transactions. These may affect the information available to you regarding transaction prices and the time you have to settle your trade on such overseas markets.
- 14.2 Overseas markets may be subject to rules which may offer different investor protection as compared to Hong Kong. Before you start to trade, you should be fully aware of the types of redress available to you in Hong Kong and other relevant jurisdictions, if any.
- 14.3 Overseas-listed investment products may not be subject to the same disclosure standards that apply to investment products listed for quotation or quoted on an approved exchange in Hong Kong. Where disclosure is made, differences in accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards may also affect the quality and comparability of information provided. It may also be more difficult to locate up-to-date information, and the information published may only be available in a foreign language.

Differences in legal systems

- 14.4 In some countries, legal concepts which are practiced in mature legal systems may not be in place or may have yet to be tested in courts. This would make it more difficult to predict with a degree of certainty the outcome of judicial proceedings or even the quantum of damages which may be awarded following a successful claim.
- 14.5 The SFC will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of the regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions will be effected.
- 14.6 The laws of some jurisdictions may prohibit or restrict the repatriation of funds from such jurisdictions including capital, divestment proceeds, profits, dividends and interest arising from investment in such countries. Therefore, there is no guarantee that the funds you have invested and the funds arising from your investment will be capable of being remitted.
- 14.7 Some jurisdictions may also restrict the amount or type of investment products that foreign investors may trade. This can affect the liquidity and prices of the overseas-listed investment products that you invest in.

- 14.8 There may be tax implications of investing in an overseas-listed investment product. For example, sale proceeds or the receipt of any dividends and other income may be subject to tax levies, duties or charges in the foreign country, in Hong Kong, or in both countries.
- 14.9 Your investment return on foreign currency-denominated investment products will be affected by exchange rate fluctuations where there is a need to convert from the currency of denomination of the investment products to another currency, or may be affected by exchange controls.
- 14.10 You may have to pay additional costs such as fees and broker's commissions for transactions in overseas exchanges. In some jurisdictions, you may also have to pay a premium to trade certain listed investment products. Therefore, before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commissions, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

Counterparty and correspondent broker risks

- 14.11 Transactions on overseas exchanges or overseas markets are generally effected by your Hong Kong broker through the use of foreign brokers who have trading and/or clearing rights on those exchanges. All transactions that are executed upon your instructions with such counterparties and correspondent brokers are dependent on their respective due performance of their obligations. The insolvency or default of such counterparties and correspondent brokers may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent and/or may result in difficulties in recovering your monies and assets held overseas.

Political, Economic and Social Developments

- 14.12 Overseas markets are influenced by the political, economic and social developments in the foreign jurisdiction, which may be uncertain and may increase the risk of investing in overseas-listed investment products.

15. RISK OF CONCENTRATION

- 15.1 Based on your preference of any investment strategy or relevant information available to us, your portfolio may invest only in or we may provide advice to you only in a specific country/region/sector/asset class. This may result in the portfolio or your investment being adversely affected by or depend heavily on the performance of those securities. You should also be aware that such portfolio is likely to be more volatile than a broad-based portfolio, such as a global or regional equity or bond portfolio, as the portfolio may be more susceptible to fluctuations in value resulting from limited number of holdings or from adverse conditions in their respective country, region, sector, or asset class.

16. RISK RELATING TO THE DEPOSITARY RECEIPTS

- 16.1 Depositary receipts are negotiable financial instruments issued by banks to represent a foreign company's publicly traded shares. Investments in depositary receipts may be subject to counterparty risks in which a significant or even total loss might be suffered in the event of the liquidation of the depository or custodian bank.

17. EMERGING MARKET RISK

- 17.1 Emerging markets may involve increased risks and special considerations not typically associated with investment in more developed markets, such as liquidity risks, currency risks/control, political and economic uncertainties, legal and taxation risks, settlement risks, custody risk and the likelihood of a high degree of volatility.

- 18.1 Your investment may be exposed to fluctuations in currency exchange rates where you invest directly or indirectly in securities denominated in currencies other than the currency of valuation of your portfolio. While the risk associated with such exposure may be offset through foreign exchange transactions, such hedging transactions may not necessarily succeed in protecting your interest against exchange rate risks that your investment is exposed to. Further, the markets in which foreign exchange transactions are effected may be highly volatile, highly specialised and highly technical. Significant changes, including changes in liquidity and prices, can occur in such markets within very short periods of time, often within minutes. Foreign exchange trading risks include, but are not limited to, exchange rate risk, interest rate risk and potential interference by foreign governments through regulation of local exchange markets, foreign investment, or particular transactions in foreign currency.
- 18.2 Where your investments are denominated in a foreign currency, they may be held with an entity which is licensed, registered or authorised to act as a custodian in the country or territory where the monies or assets in the trust account or client account are held and such omnibus account is maintained. In such cases, you understand that the laws and practices relating to custody accounts in the relevant jurisdiction may differ from the laws and practices in Hong Kong. Such differences mean that your investment may not enjoy the same level of protection as accorded to those that are held in Hong Kong. Depending on the jurisdiction, this may affect your ability to recover the investment deposited in the trust account or client account.

19. RISK OF THE LIMITATIONS OF HEDGING TECHNIQUES

19.1 We are permitted, but not obliged, to use hedging techniques such as using futures, options and/or forward contracts to attempt to offset market and currency risks. There is no guarantee that hedging techniques will fully and effectively achieve their desired result. The success of hedging much depends on various factors including any unanticipated changes in currency, interest rates and market circumstances, and hedging may become inefficient or ineffective or may result in a poorer overall performance of the portfolio. The portfolio may not obtain a perfect correlation between hedging instruments and the portfolio holdings being hedged. Such imperfect correlation may prevent the intended hedge or expose the portfolio to risk of loss. Any expenses arising from such hedging transactions, which may be significant depending on prevailing market conditions, will be borne by the portfolio in relation to which they have been incurred. This may have adverse impact on your investments or portfolio.
